District-The Final Result in Doubt. UTICA. Oct. 31 .- Following a campaign in which partisan lines have been almost entirely obliterated and personal anihave had full vent the voters of the Fifth Judicial district, comprising the counties of Onondaga, Oneida, Jefferson, Oewego, Herkimer and Lewis, will go to the polls on Tuesday and elect a Justice of the Supreme Court to succeed Justice William E. Scripture of Rome Justice Scripture has been nominated by the regular Republican organization to ed himself, and County Judge Edgar S. K. Merrell of Lowville, Lewis county is the candidate of the Democrats and of the independent Republicans. The outcome of this fight for judicial honors is matter which cannot be forecasted with anything approaching accuracy. Surveying the normal Republican majority of over 20,000 in the Fifth Judicial district and counting as his backers the majority of the Republican members of the bar in the six counties, Justice Scripture under ordinary circumstances might sit back and let the campaign take care of itself, for a Republican nomination in the Fifth district, except on rare occasions, is equivalent to an election. But the Judge has not absolute assurance of victory this time, for it is one of those rare occasions when a nomination by the Republicans of the Fifth district is not equivalent to an election.

Judge Merrell's entrance into the fight as the standard bearer of the Democrats and independent Republicans introduced an element that for several weeks past has caused the Scripturites to view the situation with at least mild apprehenn. The Scripture supporters have sed the defection of a considerable part of the regular Republican vote to Merrell and have withstood with commendable forbearance showers of vituperation hurled at Justice Scripture in newspapers, in pamphlets and on the stump. It has been a campaign in which mud slinging has played a prominent part, and altogether a more bitterly waged fight has not been witnessed hereabouts since 1902, when former Attorney-General John C. Davies, nominated by the Republicans of the Fifth district for the Supreme bench against the wishes of the rank and file of Republican voters, was defeated by Watson M. Rogers of Watertown, who had 10,000 majority.

In the present judicial campaign matters took form early last spring. It was recognized by the Republicans that in order to retain the justiceship in Oneida county much work had to be done as Oswego county was strongly pressing its claim for a nominee to fill the vacancy caused by failure to renominate Justice Wright. The sentiment in Onondaga and Jefferson counties was sounded and it was found that both counties were agreeable to the renomination of Scripture, who had served fourteen years on the bench and who desired another term, although he will be able to serve only four years if reelected as he will then have reached the age limit.

then have reached the age limit.

At this time there was no visible sign of opposition to Scripture on the part of the bar of the county or district, or from the leaders or members of the dominant party outside the limits of Oswego county, which presented Elisha B. Powell as its candidate. Later in the summer, however, a number of prominent attorneys, whom the Scripture forces assert were prompted in their action by the fact that they represented powerful corporations, took the initiative in a movement to prevent Justice Scripture's renomination, and failing in this to defeat him at the polls.

Denying that they were actuated by any motive except to "guard the ju-diciary," these attorneys were soon joined in the fight on Scripture by the George E. Pritchard of Utica for the Supreme Court nomination.

So the struggle went to the primaries, held in the last days of August. Aided materially by Vice-President Sherman and Mayor Thomas Wheeler of Utica, the recognized political dictators in Oneida county, Justice Scripture at the county judicial convention was a winner, securing 124 of the 209 delegates, the other 85 going to Judge Pritchard.

Before the county judicial convention had concluded its session Charles A. Miller, president of the Utica Savings Bank and one of the leading members of the Oneida county bar, sounded the first warning that the struggle against Scripture would go on right down to the polls. And Mr. Miller and other leading Republicans in the six counties compos-

On September 30 in Syracuse the Democratic judicial convention placed in nomination Edgar 18. K. Merrell, the County Judge and Surrogate of Lewis county. At once the Republicans opposing Scripture in each of the counties constituting the judicial district took steps to form independent judiciary leagues, and after due consideration they placed in nomination Judge Merrell on an independent judiciary ticket. n an independent judiciary ticket, hereby he became the candidate of the Independent Republicans as well as of the Democrats. The anti-Scripture forces in their fight have made the claim and spread it broadcast that: Justice Scripture is professionally and temperamentally unqualified for judicial position on the following grounds, among

First-His constant and active participation in politics while on the bench Second His abuse of discretion in making extravagant, if not illegal, allowances of costs to attorneys out of all proportion to the work which they have done.

Third-His weekness in the administra-Syracuse, who had been convicted many times before and whose sentence for burg-lary Justice Scripture suspended with full knowledge of these facts.

These were the cardinal points in the platform originally adopted by Scrioture's platform originally adopted by Scribture's political focs, but as the campaign waxed warmer detailed charges against the Judge were troited out. The allegation that his allowances to attorneys were illegal and excessive was made a great deal of. They presented the following case as an example

In the matter of William Baker Crane versus Richard W. Baker, an action brought for the partition of real property situated in the counties of Oneida, Otsego and Herkimer, the property was sold, pursuant to a court order, for $8.711, and there was a lief upon it amounting to $175.16. Judge Scripture in the final disposition of the case allowed the referee and attorneys $7.715.41, which left only $820.43 for the heirs. The plaintiff's attorne, were allowed by Judge Scripture $3,532.32. One of the attorneys representing some infant defen-dants and others received $2,639 by way of allowance, while the infants represented by him received less than $2 each as their

The and the charge of excessive allowance and the charge of excessive allowances to attorneys have been explained at length by the supporters of Scripture, and in some instances have effectually refuted the allegations made by those leading the fight on the Judge. The fact is beyond dispute, however, that the charges concerning Scripture's liberality in making allowances to attorneys will cost him many votes.

The crowning event of the campaign occurred at Albany last Monday night, when a committee of the State bar met to consider charges touching the fitness of Justice Scripture for reelection. a decision was reached. Four attorneys, led by Virgil K. Kellogg of Watertown, appeared against Justice Scripture and a considerable delegation of leading Democratic and Republican lawyers was present to speak in defence of him. The committee was in session five hours, and by a vote of eight to four (Mr. Kellogg, who presented the charges, not

OUR INTERNAL COMMERCE

INCREASED ACTIVITY IN THE INDUSTRIAL FIELD.

The Improvement Most Pronounced in the Coal and Iron Trades-Great Increase Shown in the Traffic Activity of the Railways -- Fewer Idle Cars.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 .- A largely increased activity in the industrial field is indicated by the September figures of internal commerce as reported to the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor. The improvement is most pronounced in the coal and iron trades. The lumber movements during the month were fairly heavy, though for some sections September reports show slight decreases from the larger movements recorded for the earlier months. The market receipts of agricultural products, including grain, rice, and cot ton, on the whole show a normal development. The movement of live stock, and particularly of meat products at principal packing centres, mainly on account of the smaller export demand, shows a more stationary condition. The traffic activity of the railways during the month was considerably larger than a year ago. While the number of idle cars at the end of the month had not yet disappeared, a rapidly growing car shortage began to manifest itself, which is likely to interfere to some extent with the movement of the great staples during the rest of the year.

Live stock receipts during September at seven primary interior markets, 3,691,-373 head, while considerably larger than for the preceding month, were below like receipts in September, 1908 and 1907, 3,865,486 and 3,805,654 head respectively. the losses occurring in the receipts of hogs and sheep mainly. The receipts for the nine months of the year, 28,500,864 head. were also below like receipts for the two preceding years, smaller figures being shown for all the important markets with the exception of St. Louis.

Live stock receipts during the month at four principal Atlantic seaports aggregated 721,728 head, compared with 772,845 head reported for the same period in Of the total reported 251,988 head were hogs, 319,084 sheep, 99,857 cattle, and 50,851 calves. For the thirty-nine weeks of the year the reported receipts were 6,801,622 head, compared with 7.180,-816 head in 1908, a lose of half a million hogs in receipts, being partly compensated by the larger receipts of calves and sheep. Shipments during the month of pack ing house products from Chicago-135,253 pounds-were considerably below those reported for September, 1908, and 1907-233,885,163 and 206,762,582 pounds, respectively. The nine months shipments of canned meats-31,342,725pounds-show a relative ioss or aimost 45 per cent., as compared with the corresponding 1908 figures.

Grain receipts during September at fifteen leading primary interior markets-98,489,487 bushels-were below the corresponding 1908 and 1907 figures of 113,184,908 and 97,517,864 bushels, though in excess of the corresponding 1905 and 1906 figures. As compared with like September, 1908, totals all the cereals except corn show smaller receipts. The flour years. Gen. Weston was formerly Commissary General of the Army He was born in Fentucky in 1845. He was only 16 years old at the outbreak of the civil war, in which he served as a First Lieutenant of the Fourth Kentucky Volunteer Cavalry. for the first month of the 1908 and 1807 cotton seasons of 1,221,441 and 841,329 bales. The census office reports the number of bales of cotton ginned from the 1909 growth to October 18 as 5,525,591 bales, as against 6,296,186 and 4,420,258 bales reported to the corresponding dates in 1908 and 1907. American spinners takings for the month aggregated 257,291 bales, of which almost 70 per cent. went to Southern mills. Port receipts of cotton for the month, 1,027,435 bales, indicate a heavier export demand than for the corresponding months of the two preceding years.

While serving as a Major in the Fourth Kentucky Cavairy near Wetumpka, Ala. he was in command of a small detachment charged with the duty of destroying steamboats loaded with supplies for the enemy. His detachment was blocked by an unfordable river. Accompanied by five of his men he swam across the river and captured two leaky canoes in which his small detachment was ferried over. After a skirmish with a small force of Confederates he succeeded in reaching Wetumpka, where he found the Confederate supply vessel anchored in midstream. By a ruse he lured the captain ashore and captured him. Gen. Weston will be filled by the promotion of the supply boat.

He was Assistant Chief of Staff n 1903 and later commanded the Department of the Lakes, with head Port receipts of cotton to Southern mills. Port receipts of the month at Beavier export demand than for the courseponding months of the two pre-ceding year.

Wool receipts during the month at Beavier export demand than for the courseponding months of the two pre-ceding year.

The total receipts for the month show a gain of over 83 per cent. over the september, 1908, shipments of the preceding year.

The September shipments for the nine movement of bituminous coal over seven teading Eastern coal carrying roads, 7844,210 tons. compare movement of bituminous coal over seven leading Fastern coal carrying roads. 7.844,210 tons, compares favorably with the like September, 1908, movement of 6.631,550 tons. The monthly coke movement over the same roads, 2,165,365 tons, shows a gain of almost 77 per cent, over the corresponding figures of the preceding year. The bituminous coal movement over these same roads for the nine months of the year aggregated 56,307,085 tons, compared with 49,050,180 tons reported for the same period of the preceding year. The coke movement during the same period, 14,448,087 tons, was about 58 per cent, in excess of the corresponding 1908 figures.

A great improvement in the traffic field is indicated by the comparative number of cars handled by thirty-three car service associations and demurrage bureaus, the September total, 2,993,003 cars, being almost 10 per cent. in excess of the exceedingly heavy September, 1907, figure. The number of cars handled during the nine months of the year, 22,461,174 cars, while lower than the corresponding 1907 total, was 18 per cent. responding 1907 total, was 18 per cent. in excess of the corresponding figure in the preceding year.

Columbia Trustee Explains Opposition to a Grand Stand.

In a letter to the students and gradnates of Columbia University which will appear in the Columbia Spectator and the Alumni News this morning the university trustees are defended by John B. Pine, a trustee, for their action in refusing permission to the class of 1900 to erect a grand stand on South Field. When the trustees' refusal became known last week there was a protest by undergraduates and alumni alike, for both feared that the trustees were beginning a policy which in the end would meen the complete abolition of all sports on Morningside Heights. This impression, however, according o Mr. Pine, is erroneous. In the first place.

according to the letter, the trustees refused the class of 1900's request because they felt the erection of a grand stand too big an undertaking for any one class, and econdly because they were advancing the plans which within a few years will result in the erection of a large stadium on filled in land in the Hudson River between 116th and 120th streets. The trustees found upon investigating the plans of the decennial class that the cost of a suitable stand would be nearly $50,000. Of this sum the class was willing to contribute only $10,000, and succeeding decennial classes were to complete the buildings as their anniversaries came around. The latter procedure sounded a around. The latter procedure sounded a little too visionary to the trustees, according to Mr. Pine's letter, and they came to the conclusion that if they allowed the class to go ahead with its very small section of the stand the university would be left with an unfinished building on its hands. The possibilities of needing the South Field site for new buildings in the near future also convinced the trustees that it would be a mere waste the trustees that it would be a mere waste of money for the class to attempt the proposed undertaking. In regard to the trustees' policy con-cerning athletics in general Mr. Pine

The trustees have conclusively dem-enstrated their wish and intention that South Field shall remain available athletic purposes for as long a period as possible, by adopting plans for the location of buildings which will preserve the greatest possible open space in the centre of the field—practically all the space now in useeven when the buildings at present in contem plation are erected. Furthermore the president and several of the trustees have been actively interested in securing the ere of a stadium at Riverside Park and 116th street which will be ample for the mos mportant athletic events and unique in its site and completeness, and a substantial advance has been made toward realizing
